

instruction atmosphere with various art forms to enhance students' aesthetic competence. (5) To foster students' awareness and skills in labor, help students understand the hardships and difficulties of labor, developing good habits of respecting, loving, and engaging in labor practices. Based on the framework of morality-centered cultural cultivation, the article proposed the approaches for academic libraries to implement the morality-centered education through cultural cultivation. First is to carry out reading promotion in accordance with the requirement of I&P instruction courses as well as in close collaboration with relevant units of the school by inviting teachers to engage in reading activities. Second is to integrate library resources to support high-quality course construction and enhance embedded teaching, providing robust support for all-round instruction. Third is to build a future learning center with leading information technology to create new spaces in academic libraries, effectively supporting students' learning and growth. Based on the concept of morality-centered cultural cultivation, it proposed the collaborative interaction between academic libraries and the key departments responsible for education within the institution and stressed the importance of a holistic approach to advancing all five dimensions simultaneously, providing practical guidance and reference for other libraries.
